ENGLAND WILL ALSO INVESTIGATE

Especially Will That Government Investigate the Conduct of Manager Ismay.

LONDON.—Special.—The relief funds for the Titanic disaster sufferers are growing so rapidly that it is estimated that by the latter part of next week they will be over $1,000,000. The fund for the bereaved families of the members of the ship's crew and officer complement has been marked by the liberality of the donors.

President Sidney Buxton, of the Board of Trade, took up the plans for the investigation which the English government will make into the disaster.

The inquiry will be most searching and particular reference will be made to the part that J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine Company, played.

Scores of homes are being offered to children who were made orphans by the sinking of the great White Star liner.

Charitable institutions for the homeless and destitute have made offers to Lord Mayor Crosby, of London, and the Lord Mayor of Liverpool, and Southampton to care for the orphans.

Wireless communication with the Allan Line Virginian, which was the first ship to reach the shore, was established today. The faint hope of those who prayed that there might be survivors on the Virginian was dashed by a message from the captain who reported that no one from the Titanic had been rescued by his ship.

The Virginian will land tomorrow. This ship was 175 miles from the Titanic when the latter went into a berg and was among the first to pick up the wireless call for help. The Virginian was not speedy enough, however, to render any aid.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO BRAVE WOMEN

NEW YORK.—Special.—High tribute was paid to the bravery of the women on the ill-starred Titanic, as she was sinking in the darkness off the New England coast.

In narratives which followed the first disoriented and excited utterances of the survivors the courageous behavior of the women passengers stands out in bold relief.

While men were going calmly to their death that those less able to care for themselves might live, the women, old and young, in setting a fine example of self-sacrifice.

Many are the pulse-quickenings tales which were told today of the heroism of the weaker passengers.

One of the most conspicuous of these was about Miss Edith Evans, of this city, who cheerfully gave up her life to save others, when the officer in charge of the lifeboat in which she had taken refuge said it was overcrowded and that one person must leave it.

Without hesitation, Miss Evans left the boat.

Another heroine was Mrs. Frederick R. Kenyon, of Southampton, Conn. Three men passengers were admitted to the lifeboat in which Mrs. Kenyon was a passenger, because, they said, they could work at the oars. It was soon discovered that they could not and Mrs. Kenyon ordered them to leave the boat. So sternly was the command uttered that all three did so, and the sweeps were worked by women.

The Countess of Pothies is ill at the Ritz-Carlton as a result of her experience. There were no men to work the sweeps, so the women sprang to the oars and kept the boat in motion. She was worn out by her exertions.

One of the most touching stories is that of Mrs. Isidor Straus, wife of the aged philanthropist, who refused to leave her husband. Clashed in each other's arms they went to their death when the ship sank. Mrs. Straus could have been saved, but she refused to obey orders to get into a lifeboat when she learned that her husband would have to stay behind.

Only physical force got Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Walter M. Clark, of

NEW YORK.—Special.—The awful memory of that starlit night will always leave its imprint on my mind. Going to bed, while many of my fellow passengers were occupying the time in various kinds of amusements, I was startled by the force of the smash when the Titanic crashed into the iceberg.

"I hurriedly dressed and went on deck. Ship officers and seamen were running to various parts of the vessel, reassuring passengers that there was no danger. I was on the point of going back to my cabin, some time later, when the report was circulated that the ship was sinking.

"Women and children were hurried into the lifeboats. I jumped from the ship in my hysteria. Fortunately for me, I was picked up."

NEW YORK, April 18, 1912.

"Dear Mr. Carnegie:
"As usual you hit the nail exactly on the head. They had no business up there among the icebergs, and being there they should have stopped. The question of lifeboats is a secondary one. I thank you exceedingly for your generous check of $5,000 for the sufferers."

"Sincerely yours,
(Signed) "W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor."

On the Sunday run through Illinois and Indiana crowds gathered at stations through which the colonel passed, but the ex-President only bowed from the back platform of his car.

He ended his speech-making tour at midnight Monday, leaving at once for New York.

CATS EXILED LAST YEAR RETURN TO LEAVENWORTH

LEAVENWORTH, KAN.—Special.—Black cats, white cats, gray cats, tom cats and all other members of the feline family are coming into their own in Leavenworth again. After more than a year of exile they once more are being admitted to the Soldiers' Home reservation. But they are still excluded from Fort Leavenworth.

In the fall of 1910, Brigadier-General Frederick Funston, then in command of the Fort Leavenworth reservation, banished all cats from its confines. Following the example of General Funston, Governor Sidney G. Cooke, of the Soldiers' Home, shortly afterward exiled the cat family from the reservation under his jurisdiction.

Both Fort Leavenworth and the Home were densely populated with cats at the time the orders were issued, and the mournful song of the midnight diva became a memory of the past. Since then quiet has reigned supreme during the long hours of darkness and no articles of footwear or pieces of bedroom furniture have been thrown to the winds.

But Governor Cooke is a kind-hearted man. The recent extremely cold weather perhaps made him regret his action in banishing the cat from the confines of the Home.

HARRISONBURG, VA.—Special.—Encouraged by Roosevelt's success, the old Acker faction met here and elected Mr. Postmaster Keezell county chairman, and will soon start work on contesting the delegation to Chicago.

KNOCKED MAN DOWN: THOUGHT HIM DEAD

HARRISONBURG, VA.—Special.—Jonathan Barton knocked down Walter Rhodes with a chair Monday and, thinking he had killed him, walked eleven miles to town and surrendered.

Rhodes is a prominent farmer and will recover. The men quarreled at the supper table. Barton is in jail.

RETURN TO THE MILLS OPERATIVES IN LOWELL

LOWELL, MASS.—Special.—Fifteen thousand operatives returned to work in the mills of this city after a four-weeks strike. They are paid a loss of $400,000 in wages and $300,000 to the mill owners. The agreement gives the operatives a raise of ten per cent. and numerous minor betterments.

The Departure of Helen.

A widely known motor racer was asked by a friend if he would be so kind as to allow three young women to accompany him while he was trying out a new racing car.

"Why, I can't be bothered with passengers at a time like that, and especially with women. They always talk to me and I can't have my mind distracted. It might prove dangerous, you know."

"But these girls won't bother you. I'll tell them not to. One of them is my sister. They are crazy to go; want to say they have ridden with you. You know how girls are."

"Well, if you will tell them they mustn't speak to me while I am driving around or do anything to distract my attention. You impress this upon them. If they are willing to do this they can go."

The promise was made and they started. At one place the driver ran over a water guard and there was a tremendous bump. He did not try to look around, as he was going at a rapid rate of speed, but presently he felt a timid touch on his shoulder.

"What is it?" he growled.

A weak little voice answered him: "Really I hate to trouble you, but I know I shouldn't and I promise not to, but I feel that I must tell you that Helen isn't with us now."—Harper's Magazine.

Women Storm City Market.

CLEVELAND, O.—Special.—Ten thousand Cleveland women led by Lew Shank, the "Potato Mayor" of Indianapolis, and officers of women's clubs, marched on the Central Market Thursday in a crusade against the high cost of living and for municipal district markets.

Mayor Shank spoke twice to the women, urging the municipal sale of fish as one step Cleveland ought to take. Ed. Bieder, author of the municipal market resolution, also spoke for his measure.

The full mounted police squad and thirty patrolmen were required to control the basket laden throng.
